FULL TEXT

WALKING Tall star Dwayne The Rock Johnson is set to appear in a new fact- based film about a group of teens at a juvenile detention centre. He will play a counsellor who inspires his charges to gain confidence and self- respect and fires them up as football players in "Gridiron Gang".

Location filming at the Los Angeles County Probation Department's Camp Kilpatrick is expected to start soon.

Fiennes plays Voldemort in `Harry Potter 4'

* IN case you haven't heard, actor Ralph Fiennes has reportedly signed on to appear as evil warlock Voldemort in the next Harry Potter film.

Voldemort, who has only been an ominous spirit in the first three Potter films, is set to appear in the flesh in Harry Potter And The Goblet Of Fire.

Filming of the project, which sees the return of stars Daniel Radcliffe, Rupert Grint and Emma Watson, began on June 25 with Mike Newell (Four Weddings And A Funeral) in the director's chair.

Other new faces in the cast include Katie Leung as Cho Chang, the girl Potter is sweet on, Brendan Gleeson as Dark Arts teacher Mad- Eye Moody, and Miranda Richardson as magic-gossip columnist Rita Skeeter.

Duff in a huff over Hilton's `Screwed'

* CALL it the "It's my hit!" war between Paris Hilton and Haylie Duff. Both aspiring pop princesses are fighting over who owns the rights to release the song Screwed. Hilton has apparently already leaked her version of the tune, from her forthcoming debut Paris Is Burning, on the Internet, leaving Duff in a huff.

There's no news yet whether Hilary Duff's older sister will go ahead with plans to release her own version of the song.

`Ring' sequel to open only next year

* PRODUCTION delays have apparently upset the shooting schedule for the sequel to the horror hit The Ring.

The film starring Naomi Watts, Sissy Spacek and Simon Baker was originally set to open in November. But production ground to a halt when director Noam Murro pulled out of the project. He has been replaced by Hideo Nakata, the director of the Japanese cult film The Ring is based on.

'60s Catwoman hurt in crash

* ACTRESS Eartha Kitt, who played Catwoman in the 1960s TV series Batman, reportedly suffered minor injuries in a car crash in Norwalk, Connecticut, the United States recently.

The 77-year-old star was treated at a local hospital after her car collided with another vehicle. Her travel companions, two poodles, were reported to be unhurt.

Weisz joins Jackman in `The Fountain'

* ACTRESS Rachel Weisz has reportedly signed on to star opposite Hugh Jackman in The Fountain, a new sci-fi adventure directed by Darren Aronofsky.

The time-travel epic, which originally had Brad Pitt and Cate Blanchett on board, was revived by Jackman early this year after being shelved two years ago.

Johansson and Gyllenhaal an item?

* LOST In Translation star Scarlett Johansson has reportedly been seeing a lot of Jake Gyllenhaal since he broke up with actress Kirsten Dunst.

Johansson, who was quoted as saying "I'd definitely like to be in a relationship with the right person", apparently finds Gyllenhaal perfect for her.

Dillon joins cast of `Herbie' sequel

* ACTOR Matt Dillon is the latest addition to the cast of Disney's Herbie: Fully Loaded which will star Lindsay Lohan and Michael Keaton. Also in talks for a role in the film is Breckin Meyer.

In the film, to be directed by Angel Robinson (D.E.B.S.), headstrong Volkswagen Beetle Herbie enters a Nascar race to prove his worth as a speed demon.

New Flash Gordon film being developed

* FILMMAKER Stephen Sommers has reportedly acquired the rights to the 1930s comic classic Flash Gordon to turn it into a new feature film for Universal.

The Van Helsing writer-director will not only be helming the project but will also write the screenplay.

Clinton declines `SNL' offer

* BILL Clinton has apparently declined an offer to host Saturday Night Live.

The former US President gave no reason for turning down the gig on the popular comedy show which would have had him poking fun at himself in various skits.
